

Why Choose Powder Coating

Powder coating is a dry film paint. The powder is applied as a dry film rather than being dissolved in a liquid (water or solvent). As it enters the cure oven the powder gels and adheres to the substrate. Further curing produces a superior finish with outstanding hardness and durability.

When using powder as a one coat finish compared with a conventional two coat (primer/topcoat) wet paint system, powder coating is very competitively priced as well as being environmentally friendly.
